

The Story of John and Janet Fairlie

Bruce Fairlie

1 August 2015

1 Introduction

Recently I started looking at the genealogy of the children of Walter and Janet (Lockhart) Fairlie other than my Great-Great-Grandfather Walter. I began with the descendants of their eldest child, John.

It is not my intention to present all the details of the genealogy of John's descendants; I have provided these in a computer generated extract from my family history database, included here as an Appendix. Rather, I will look at the more general aspects of the family's history, and perhaps indulge in some gentle prognostication!

It must be said that the research behind the genealogy presented here is very young. It has been completed largely in the past few months, and has thus not had the benefit that accrues from "maturing". With time, output such as this gets checked and cross-checked against other parts of the family tree. So far, I have only completed the most rudimentary checks (I don't think anyone here was born after they died) and there are bound to be errors of commission and omission, most of which will be corrected with the passing of time. Apart from those few errors that seem, inevitably, to persist.

2 John and Janet

Let me start by complaining that this story has too many Johns! I need to be able to distinguish them easily, so I will refer to Walter's son John (1819-1899) as John(1), his son John (1856-1921), who spent a good part of his life in India, as John(2), and his son John (1889-1959) who spent most of his adult life in Australia and was also known as Jock, as John(3).

John(1) Fairlie married Janet Renwick in Glasgow in 1841. Over the next 20 years, Janet bore nine children, five girls and four boys. Like their father, nearly all the children did very well at various times in their lives, mostly ending up in very comfortable circumstances, living in what were, for that time, fairly grand houses. But for several, including John(1), the ride was far from smooth!

John(1) was born in 1819 in the small town of Eastwood (now known as Pollokshaws) about 5 km south of Glasgow. I know little of his early life. He appears at age 20 in the 1841 UK Census (the earliest that is available to us today). He is still living with his parents, but now in Jamieson's Lane, Anderston, at that time on the western outskirts of Glasgow. His occupation is listed as "Clerk". By 1851, John had married Janet and they were living at 26 Taylor Street, Glasgow. John listed his occupation as "Bookkeeper". They moved into the next street at 26 Hopetown Place in the early 1850s and remained there until 1861. In the 1861 Census, John's occupation is still "Bookkeeper". However, so far as the UK Census is concerned, we lose sight of the family for the next decade. I have been unable to find any trace of John or Janet or any of their younger children in the 1871 Census. Where were they?

It is possible that the relevant Census sheet has just been lost or simply mislabelled. But we can also trace John's whereabouts and occupation through the Annual Glasgow Directory, published by the Post-Office. According to this source:

- In 1861, John was living at 23 Elgin Terrace, Partick and worked for Hamilton & Co.
- In 1866 he moved to 49 Arlington Street, Woodside and continued working at at Hamilton & Co.
- In 1869, while still living at 49 Arlington Street, Woodside, he joined Matthew, Buchanan and Co.
- By 1871 he was living at 155 St Georges Road, Woodside, but remained at Matthew, Buchanan and Co.
- In 1874, he was living at 1 Elgin Terrace, Partick, and still worked at Matthew, Buchanan and Co.
- By 1875 he had moved to 3 Elgin Terrace, Partick, and remained at Matthew, Buchanan and Co.
- In 1876 he was living at 14 Royal Terrace West, Park, and still remained at Matthew, Buchanan and Co.

and these addresses are confirmed by entries in Glasgow's rate books.

John also gave 1 Elgin Terrace as his address when he was a witness to the death (in 1875) of his sister Ann.

The discovery that he worked for Matthew, Buchanan & Co., of 5 West Regent Street, in the City of Glasgow set me off on a whole new voyage of discovery.

In the latter part of 1878 rumours had begun circulating around Glasgow about the financial stability of the City of Glasgow Bank, not one of the biggest of the Scottish banks, but big enough to be of concern. An auditor's report published in October 1878 showed that the bank had debts of over £6 million, an unbelievably large sum for that time. The directors, manager and secretary of the bank were eventually arrested on charges of fraud, tried, found guilty and sentenced to between 8 and 18 months in jail. A small number of companies made up the majority of the bank's debtors, each with liabilities in the millions of pounds. Among them was Matthew, Buchanan & Co. with liabilities of over £1.2 million. The owners of this company were Thomas Matthew and John Fairlie.

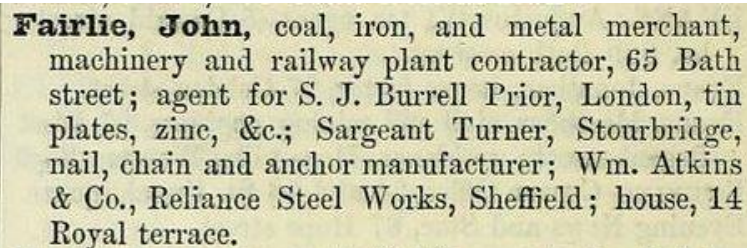

Despite general agreement that the company had been little more than "a mere agency for financing with the City of Glasgow Bank", once the extent of the firm's indebtedness was revealed in the auditor's report, the firm was immediately declared insolvent and on 18 November the two partners were proclaimed bankrupt. The assets of the bankrupts were realized and used to pay off a very small part (less than 1%) of the firm's debt. They were discharged from bankruptcy on 2 November 1880.

Of particular interest in this squalid affair was the description of Matthew and Fairlie in the bankruptcy papers as "Merchants and Co-partners, trading under the style or firm of Matthew Buchanan and Co; and both of Rangoon, and Moulmein, British India, trading under the style or firm of Buchanan and Co."

Did John travel to India at any time? From the continuous series of entries in the rate books and the Post-Office Directory, if he did, it must have been only for a short period. Does this perhaps explain his non-appearance in the 1871 Census? Unfortunately, lists of incoming and out-going passengers to and from the UK are available only after 1878, so the question must remain unanswered for the present.

John wasted no time in re-establishing himself in business. In the 1881 Census he describes himself as a "Coal and Iron Merchant". His entry in the 1881-82 Post-Office Directory of Glasgow is shown in Figure 2.

The description of this business is suspiciously similar to a business started by his son William in about 1877 which was declared insolvent in 1881 (see more details below). Nevertheless, John continued to operate this business until his death in 1899, although the 1891 Census describes him as a "Retired Merchant". He continued to live at 14 Royal Terrace West throughout this time, and died (of "senile debility") there in December 1899. Janet lived there until her death in March 1908.

John and Janet had nine children, their births spread across nearly 20 years. I currently have little information about the lives of five of them:

Martha Milne Fairlie (1842–) married Robert Gilchrist in 1868. At this stage, I have not found any evidence of children from this marriage.

Jessie Lockhart Fairlie (1844–) married William Young in about 1867 when Jessie was 23 and William was 45. They had four children: Robert (1868–), Jessie Renwick (1870–), Walter James (1872–), and Charles Henry (1874–1945). Charles emigrated to New Zealand where he married Isobel Woodside Morton in 1932. They settled in Dunedin.

Walter Fairlie (1849–) went to sea in 1865 at the age of 16. He rose through the ranks and was certified as a second mate in 1849. But then he disappears from sight! I can find no evidence of him ever marrying or having children.

Annie Lockhart Fairlie (1859–1951) never married and continued living at 14 Royal Terrace West until her death in June 1951, aged 92.

James Renwick Fairlie (1861–1937) did not marry. He worked as a drapery warehouse man while living at 14 Royal Terrace West until his retirement in 1925. He died in December 1937.

Details of the remaining children are included in the following sections.

2.1 Jane Renwick Fairlie (1846–1939)

Jane married Henry Carlyle Fairlie (1844–1909) (just to make it a bit harder for family historians!) in Glasgow in 1872. In 1878, Henry began a very successful chemical manufacturing company, H. C. Fairlie & Co. at the Camelon Chemical Works, Falkirk, Stirlingshire where, amongst other things, they extracted iodine from kelp.

In 1909 Henry died of a heart attack while returning from Ceylon aboard the Staffordshire. He had gone to Ceylon “for the benefit of his health”. He was buried at sea. Jane lived in their house at 2 University Gardens, Glasgow for some time (at least until 1911) following Henry’s death. She then moved to live with her daughter Janet in Crieff, Perthshire, where she died in October 1939.

Jane and Henry had seven children:

James Fairlie (1873–) was involved in the day-to-day operation of his father's company in Falkirk. He married Jessie Mary Downes in 1896, but they had no children. James was elected to the local (Falkirk) council in 1900, and was very active in that role, being appointed baillie (a municipal magistrate) in 1901. James continued to run H. C. Fairlie & Co. until it went into voluntary liquidation in 1956. Jessie died in 1955 and James in 1960, aged 87.

Janet Renwick Fairlie (1875–1958) married Edwin George Coulson (1873–1943) in Glasgow in 1907. Edwin was from an extremely well to do family in Glasgow. They had two children, one of whom (Frank Fairlie Coulson) became a minister of religion.

John Clowes Fairlie (1879–1955) studied engineering and became a chemical engineer. He married Flora Orr Barr in Paisley in 1903 and they had at least one child, Henry Carlyle Fairlie.

Agnes Lilian Fairlie (881–1953) married Gordon Eadie (1882–1961) in Glasgow in 1911. They had three children, Helen, David and Alastair. It appears that Gordon may have worked in Egypt, as Agnes and two of their children are recorded as sailing for Egypt in 1932.

Henry Prescott Fairlie (1884–1937) married Elizabeth Boyd in Glasgow in about 1914. Henry graduated from the University of Glasgow with a Bachelor of Medicine in 1905 and a Doctor of Medicine in 1912. He served in the Army Medical Corps in France in WWI. His Doctoral Thesis was on anaesthesiology, a subject in which he became expert, writing the second and subsequent editions of the definitive book on the subject. The couple had four children, Helen, Henry, Jane and Betty.

Francis Walter Fairlie (1887–) does not appear to have married and I know very little about him.

Helen Jane Fairlie (1890–) is again, something of a mystery.

2.2 Isabella Renwick Fairlie (1851–1884)

Isabella married James Marshall Parker (1849–1911) in Glasgow in 1879. James was a member of a prominent local family of wholesale grocers.

Isabella and James had three children:

Tina Parker (1880–1969) about whom I know very little.

Douglas Parker (1883–) who is similarly mysterious, and Isabella Renwick Fairlie Parker (1885–1954) who married John Service (1874–1937) in Glasgow about 1910. They had two children, Quinton and James. James became a minister of religion in Ayrshire.

2.3 William Renwick Fairlie (1854–1920)

William married Eliza Palmer (1856–1930) in 1880, but it appears that the couple had no children.

William was, throughout his life, involved with companies operating as iron, coal and metal or machinery merchants. By 1880 he was operating two companies, Fairlie Brothers, Coal, Iron and Metal Merchants, and William Fairlie, Coal, Iron and Metal Merchants. He was the sole partner in both companies. The estates of these companies were sequestered in September 1880 and William was subsequently declared bankrupt.

By the 1901 Census of Scotland, William was once again able to give his occupation as an Iron Machinery Merchant. At this time he was probably in partnership with his father John(1). At the time of his death in 1920, his occupation was listed as the Managing Director of the Forthe Ship Breaking Company in Bo'Ness, Linlithgowshire (now West Lothian).

2.4 John Fairlie (1856–1921) (John(2))

While it is not clear whether John(1) Fairlie ever went to India, that is certainly not the case with his son John(2). He married Jessie Agnes Gracie (1867–) in Calcutta, in 1888 and their three children, John(3), Archibald and Walter were all born in Calcutta. He appears in the 1895 Directory of India, associated with Renwick and Co. operating out of Kooshtea (Kushtia). In his will, signed in July 1906, John(2) describes himself as a “sometime Agricultural Implement Maker and Engineer in India”. The will also mentions his interests in The Bengal United Tea Company Limited, The Hattikhira Tea Company Limited and the Bisnauth Tea Company Limited.

John(2) re-married in 1906. The fate of his first wife, Jessie, is not known, but there is some evidence to suggest that she died in India, some time before 1900. In 1901, John(2) and Jessie's three children were living with their uncle and aunt, William and Eliza Fairlie at their home, “Fairthorn” in Balshagray Avenue, Glasgow.

In 1906, John(2) married Agnes Janet Richmond (1873–1946) in Glasgow. But before the marriage, John(2) had Agnes sign an “Ante-nuptial Contract of Marriage”. This document set out the provisions that John(2) made for his new wife in addition to those set out in his will. Why did John(2) see the need for such a document? It was certainly very unusual for the time. There is no doubt that John(2) did extremely well for himself in India and was now very well off. By 1909 he was living in Montgomerie House at 11 Crosslain (now Clevedon) Road, Kelvinside.

John(2) and Jessie had three children:

John (Jock) Fairlie (1889–1959) John(3) emigrated to Western Australia some time before 1914. Whether he departed from Scotland or India, is not clear, but the former seems more likely. John(2) mentions in a codicil to his will that he had provided his son with £1000 (worth today between $200,000 and $1 million, depending on your assumptions) “to stock his farm in Australia”. John(3) established a property in Wagin, a wheat-belt town about 230 km south-east of Perth, known for breeding high quality merino sheep. By 1922, the property was known as “Pine Hill Farm”. In June 1924, John(3) travelled back to Glasgow where he married Ella Milne Chrystal (1890–1977). The couple made their way back to Australia, arriving in Albany on 10 January 1925. However, it appears that the property at Wagin may not have been a success, or his new wife took a dislike to life on the farm. In any case, by 1931 John(3) and Ella were living in suburban Perth.

The couple continued living in suburban Perth where John had a job as a clerk at the Swan Brewery. They had one child, Elizabeth Maureen Fairlie (1927–) who is still living in Perth.

In May 1931, John(2)'s second wife, Agnes Janet, visited Australia. Ella Fairlie and her daughter Elizabeth accompanied Agnes on her return to Scotland. They remained in Scotland for six months before returning to Australia in November of the same year. It is interesting to note that while they travelled to Scotland with Agnes in a first class cabin, they made the return trip in third class!

Archibald Douglas Fairlie (1890–1923) appears to have continued his father's business interests in India. He travelled from London to Calcutta in 1914, giving his occupation as "Mercantile Assistant". He was in Glasgow at the time of his father's death in 1921, but returned to Calcutta, sailing from Liverpool, towards the end of that year. At that time he gave his occupation as “Tea Planter”.

I have found no evidence of him marrying. He died in 1923 at the Paloi Tea Estate, an entity that appears to still exist. His death was certified by his brother Walter.

Walter S. Fairlie (1892–) also appears to have continued the family’s interests in India. There is a record of him returning to London from Calcutta in 1921 when he listed his occupation as “Tea Planter”. He must have returned to India shortly thereafter as he certified his brother, Archibald’s, death in 1923.

3 Conclusion

This story is just a very small step towards a more complete survey of Walter and Janet’s children. I hope to continue work on expanding the story of John and Janet’s descendants as well as the lives of the other children. I can only hope that their lives prove to be as interesting as John’s family has. So far I have barely scratched the surface!
